This body of work illustrates and explains the thoughts and feelings that have directed my life for a long time. My vision is grounded in the principles of social, political and ecological justice. I am an activist and a person with a deep concern for the social and environmental issues that affect the lives of humans, animals and all living things. My concern is with the planet where I live and the future for all humanity.

My works showcased in this exhibit mark the transition I have recently made by moving to beautiful British Columbia from my homeland in the Philippines. The subject matter is inspired by my explorations of the natural environment, my explorations of the natural environment, through gardening, boating, fishing, hiking and camping, on the West Coast and West Vancouver of British Columbia. My imagery fuses local inspiration with decorative motifs from my homeland.
